She stepped up to make at satuted her with astonishment, for Louis XVI, had assured me that the Queen knew nothing of the fobrications in the cabint. "My dear Gainsin," said she, in a carcesing tone, "you seem loot, my friend, drink the glass of whit, and cat this cake, that will support you during your walk." I thanked ber, quite overwhelmed at this consideration for a poor worknian like me, and i emptled the glass to her licitin. She time put on my cravat and coat, which I had land saids in order that I might work at my case. "The cake rumained on the plate, which the Queen had laid on one of the tobles; and I slipped it into my pocket, as the King took leave of me, intending to bring it bome to my children. "The the Thillerles as night set to; it was about eight o'clock. I was in such haste to arrive at Versaulies and to embrace my wife and children; I was so anxious to alsy the?" fears at my protrasted absente, that I did not choose to enter a cafe to get any food, though I much need ed some. I calculated on deriving support formy walk of four lo guees from the glass of wine which I owed to the nexpleable foresight of the Queen. I wiked on a good pace through the Champs Elysees, toking the chauses on the waterwer to be met with at that time, on account of Queen. I wilked on a good pace through the Champs Elysees, taking the chausee on the water-sade, where neither enringe nor foot travelers were to be met with at that time, on account of the uncertainty of though once it had been much frequented Buddenly I as seezed with a general qualin, which, however, did not prevent inc from pursuing my course, but these agnes) improme of sudden midsposition become more prenounced by agonizing internal pains, nervous spasms, and no burning tensation in the intestuce. I was ignorant of the cause or character of a complaint, the preliminary symptoms of which cuscul such torture, and I sank gasping at the foot of a true. I believed myself be to be lost, and I antributed it to an attack)—of apoplexy. My sight left me, I berrd with difficulty, accompanied by a frightful colic, which made me writhe, screaming and weaping on the ground. I caught a glimpise of people passing in the distance, and of carrages. I shrucked for help, han no one came near me. I cropt on bands and knees through the mad towards the river, as I was parched with thirst, caused by the laternal fire which was consuming me. The efforts which I made, led, perhaps to a favorable crisis. I was relieved after vomiling, which seemed to bring the me to death's door, causing, as they did, each intense tortures. At intervals I uttured placeing rice, and my means were increasing. Thus passad an litear of anguish. Finally, as I felt myself recovening, the sound of a carringe approaching reached on the seemed to the second of a carringe approaching reached on the second of a carringe approaching

The Ohio Squatorship. A rigorous contest is going on in Ohio over the Timeville Soldiers Orphaus' School of the thic sest in the Senate of the United States which advanced grade is now open for the reception of suffering in person and property for opinion's sake; and he was then adopted by the Democracy of Ohio as a leader and standard-beater-a post tion which he cheerfully accepted, when few mer would have had courage enough to do so, and when there was absolutely no immediate propeet of gaining by it. Clearly, Vallandighau should be, if he is not, the "coming man" Democratic party in the Buckeye State. No canhas such esims to consideration. Thurms didate that has been named for the Senatorship can present no such record. He may have been as disloyal at heart as Vallandigham, but if so he lacked the plack to prove it he remained quiet when Vallandigham was conspicuous as an enemy of the Union and an ad-President; Silas Chidester, Vice President; and James Close, Secretary. The societym ceta every while Vallandigham wandered about in exite; he became a Democratic candidate only when a good prospect of an election presented itself; but Vallandigham took a Democratic homination when defeat was as certain as the decree of fate. Which, then, has the most valid claim upon the gratitude of the Democracy—Thurman or Vullaudigham?

We cannot conceal from ourselves the fact that unless the Democratic Legislature of Ohlo shell broad illustration of political institute, and the inscreality of all human aspirations.

Further Particulars of the late Railroad

Disaster.
It seems gone cert on that Mr. C. E. Alken di Hydetown, was among the victims of the rallroad casualty at Angola. Releft Hyderown on the day of the accident to go to Wyoming, New York, and one of his children returned on Sat-urday from that place with the metancholy intelligence that his lather had not arrived file locked at Erre, and afterwards unlocked at Brocton to adout the passengers from the Cross Cut tout. Mr. W. C. Patterson was among them, and there is no teason to donot that Mr. Athen, who took as a make some call with Mr. P. at Hydestown, also converted this ill-fated train in his ompany. M: Amen curied a revolver in hiporket, and the explosions which occurred to he burning car were in all probability from the drughters, all of adult age. He was about fifty years of age and was an old resident of Hyde-town, where he was universally respected.

I had no news of Louis XVI.; and, notwithstanding the resentence, which rankied in my soul most the interpreted in the reset of this deed; of the deed in polesced. Helweyer, the trish came out one day in spite of me.

"Bome with safer the catastrophe, the servant mald, in elecating my coat, found in the pocket a handigroched, covered, with black stains, and crushed and sational brinch, which days of neglicity in the desire of the girl, which had satisfact, and site is the fit court. The dog ato the bit of pastry and died; the girl, who had only taken a morset, fell dangerously ill. The dog was opened by M. Voisin. The presence of polson in the presence of polson in the handker-the which had been marked by my nottings. In the cake alone there was enough corrected sublimate to kill ten persons.

"At last, thus, I had all the cyclence I requiredly. I was convinced of the pilsoning, if not of who were my polsoners." I thiratted for revenue. I teared lest I should die before the opportunity presented them. I remained deprived of the use of my limbs during fite months. It was only one to Parts.

the 19th November that I was in condition to come to Parls of betook myself to the minister Robod, who received me at once on hearing the amounterment that I had an important secret to confide to the highest polines, and I refused the recompense he offered in the name of the Contention. Revenge Two Months morrow the cabinet was discovered the perfer which is contained were placed in the content of the Convention, and Louis XVI. and Marja Antoinets were brought to the scandal. This code Gamain's horrible story. I cannot offer it of the convention, and Louis XVI. and the perfect of the Convention, and Louis XVI. and Marja Antoinets were brought to the scandal. This code Gamain's horrible story. I cannot offer it of the convention of Conventions of Conventions.

XVI., for less Marie Antoinette, was guilly of such a fearful crime.

Not only is such an act fureign to what we know of their natures and characters, but there are circumstances in Gamani's story which of themselves are calculated to arouse anapicon. Gamani, when he told the secret of the Iron cabinet, never altituded to his poleoning; it was not all, two, years later that he brought the story between the Gonvention, and not till those whom he secret is discussed were dead.

Vibrain, moreover, was known to have been a favorite of the King, and to have profited largely by his patronage. His act of treathery in discovering his master's secret papers to his litterest enemies, and in heavy thus a means of bringing his to his execution, master have aroused the indigitation of many. The story of the poseon may served to clear him of this imputation. His sect could only be regarded as one of the basest largestimes. Nay more, it served to bring him in a pension of twelve bundred livres per annum. The accusation was worth that price to the leaders of the Revolution, and the evidence was certain to the Gamanin's story in 1800 differed muturially from that in 1794. In his petition the lock-smittigation of the Revolution, which is differed muturially from that in 1794. In his petition the lock-smittigation that the decount, taken down by M. Lierofy, the Queen amits stated that the King had given him the glass of when with his own hand. In this second, taken down by M. Lacroby, the Queen plays a prominent part, and is the person who actually poisoned him.

Bome of the details of the marrative are also wispicious. The opportions arity of of the English medical m m who was under oblig tions to. Grashin is very suspicious. We read of these confidences in more is, but not in real. If e. How is it that the Englishman's usuale is not given?—How, too, could this person, succeed in passing the barriers at night, conveying the six man to Versallies? The incident of the external the day is much like what we find in story broke. dog is much like what we find in story books, and is also open to question. However, it is not improbable that Gaussia may have had a savera ilmess, precipated by the fullpars of the day, and perhaps by comething which he may have eaten or drank at the patien, and which deagreed with him, and this may have served is a groundwork for his story.

It is certainly very remarkable that the sill his opening much of the poisons.

It is certainly very neural-gable that the all lin-portical point of the presentation of the poison-ed who is just the very point on which he con-tradies bitmed?; and it is actions that to the end of his days G uputa always would all mover-ing a question prior blank.
